BUSINESS ENGLISH:

Group Classes...

As a business person you are undoubtedly busy and would appreciate a short intensive course to really focus on your English skills in the most efficient way possible.

We have years of experience in Business English and have successfully provided language training to a range of blue-chip clients. A small selection includes:

Ericsson; Nokia; ABB; Honda; Ernst & Young; Bausch & Lomb; Deutsche Bank; Finibanco; Military personnel from the Italian Navy and the Oman Air Force.

Also various institutions in Sweden including:

The University of Lund; The Ministry of Education; The Ministry of Labour; Malmo City Planning Office.

References available on request.

At Anglolang we offer an intensive one or two week course package of tuition, accommodation and social programme.

At the end of the course you will:

- Be more confident about using English
- Be more fluent in English
- Be more aware of politeness/diplomatic expressions
- Be able to use English directly relevant to your work
- Have a wider vocabulary
- Have better listening skills

A course tailored for your needs

Although we offer suggested timetables, we work closely with our customers to tailor courses to your exact requirements.

Courses can be conducted in closed groups so that you and your colleagues can enjoy studying together on an intensive course of your choice or, alternatively, you can join open groups and benefit from learning alongside business people from other cultures.

Plus a varied social programme

In order to gain the maximum benefit from your course we offer a varied social programme featuring:

- A town tour with guide
- A country pub tour on your first evening
- Private film screening in our own Anglolang cinema
- An end of course dinner
- Plus optional excursions and theatre outings

Course Details...

Although we can design any Business course to suit your needs, our most popular courses are:

Presentation Skills

In a small group of no more than 8 students you can study the most effective ways to give presentations in English.

Course content includes:

Useful phrases, advice on introducing, structuring and linking presentations, effective use of visual aids, creating and maintaining audience interest and intensive individual attention to your own weaker points whether it be your English (eg: pronunciation, vocabulary) or your general presentation technique.

The course usually culminates in giving a videoed presentation, taking questions from the audience and individual feedback. Why not improve your English and Presentation Skills at the same time in a supportive, professional environment.

Meetings

An opportunity to improve your oral fluency, listening skills and ability to communicate more effectively.

Course content includes:

Studying the features of successful meetings and practising putting over your point of view. Learning useful phrases for agreement, disagreement, making concessions, summarising, concluding and all the other functions of meetings.

We also look at the language of persuasion, politeness and diplomacy, negotiation, intercultural awareness, social English and the presentation of facts and figures. Meeting simulations based on your work situation can be combined with the opportunity to discuss a wide range of topical world issues to improve your general English.

English for Secretaries

A great chance to improve your confidence in English and to talk about a variety of world and work issues.

Course content includes:

Social English with a focus on vocabulary building and expressing your opinions has been a popular feature of the course together with work related topics. The language of telephoning, intercultural awareness and the welcoming of visitors are also covered. Some secretaries on our courses request the layout and vocabulary of business letters and faxes and this is also available. There is also an optional visit to the workplace of a British secretary in order to compare notes. However, it must be emphasised that all the components of the course can be negotiated with the students, some secretaries like to study presentation skills for example, and this can easily be catered for.
